Attorney General Ken Paxton Secures Historic $1.375 Billion Settlement with Google Related to Texans' Data Privacy Rights

Attorney General Ken Paxton secured a $1.375 billion settlement in principle with Google, delivering a historic win for Texans' data privacy and security rights and marking the highest recovery nationwide against Google for any attorney general's enforcement of state privacy laws.

In 2022, Attorney General Paxton sued Google for unlawfully tracking and collecting users' private data regarding geolocation (<https://www.texasattorneygeneral.gov/news/releases/ag-paxton-sues-google-deceptively-tracking-users-location-without-consent>), incognito searches (<https://www.texasattorneygeneral.gov/news/releases/ag-paxton-amends-google-lawsuit-include-incognito-mode-another-deceptive-trade-practices-act>), and biometric data (<https://www.texasattorneygeneral.gov/news/releases/paxton-sues-google-its-unauthorized-capture-and-use-biometric-data>).

Attorney General Paxton agreed to settle Texas's data-privacy claims against Google for an amount that far surpasses any other state's claims for similar violations. To date, no state has attained a settlement against Google for similar data-privacy violations greater than $93 million. Even a multistate coalition that included forty states secured just $391 million—almost a billion dollars less than Texas's recovery.

“In Texas, Big Tech is not above the law. For years, Google secretly tracked people's movements, private searches, and even their voiceprints and facial geometry through their products and services. I fought back and won,” said Attorney General Paxton. “This $1.375 billion settlement is a major win for Texans' privacy and tells companies that they will pay for abusing our trust. I will always protect Texans by stopping Big Tech's attempts to make a profit by selling away our rights and freedoms.”

Attorney General Paxton has led the nation in ensuring Big Tech companies do not violate the law or illegally use Texans' personal data, founding

(<https://www.texasattorneygeneral.gov/news/releases/attorney-general-ken-paxton-launches-data-privacy-and-security-initiative-protect-texans-sensitive>) the largest data privacy and security initiative of any state. In July, Attorney General

Paxton secured a $1.4 billion settlement

(formerly Facebook) for unlawfully collecting and using facial recognition data—the largest settlement ever obtained from an action brought by a single State. Previously, Attorney General

Paxton reached $700 million
